ABOUT THE PRESS

Sea Crow Press is committed to amplifying voices that might otherwise go unheard with a focus on positive change and great storytelling. Founded in 2020, the growing press is home to an eclectic collection of creative nonfiction, fiction, and poetry. At Sea Crow Press we believe the small press plays an essential part in contemporary arts by amplifying its voices. Sea Crow Press is committed to building an accessible community of writers and dedicated to telling stories that matter. Sea Crow Press is named for a flock of five talkative crows you can find anywhere on the beach between Scudder Lane and Bone Hill Road in Barnstable Village on Cape Cod. According to Norse legend, one-eyed Odin sent two crows out into the world so they could return and tell him its stories. If you sit and listen to the sea crows in Barnstable as they fly and roost and chatter, it's an easy legend to believe.

MOON TIDE

CAPE COD POEMS

MARY PETIET

CAPE COD
BOOKS POETRY

Trade paperback ISBN: 978-0-578646-60-2 $12.95

"Some have compared Petiet's work to Thoreau, but to my mind, these poems are more reminiscent of Mary Oliver. I love the way the author brings the smells of sea and sand, and the landscape, to life throughout. I live in the Rockies, but reading this I'm brought right back to the Cape, to weathered gray houses and frogs in the marsh and the constant presence of the sea like its own person."

MEMORIES OF A CAPE COD TOWN

MARY E. MCDERMOTT

CAPE COD
BOOKS MEMOIR/TRAVEL

Trade paperback ISBN: 978-1-7358140-5-6 $14.95

"A gem of a book. Featuring women who could dig clams, shuck 'em on the flats, and bring them home to make chowder, fields of cattle, and doctors walking through the snow to make life-saving house calls. McDermott's memoirs and short stories reveal a Cape Cod life that was simpler but no less complicated when it came to love, marriage, and family, and her stories burst with love for her home town, "With its harbor and seagulls and the salt tang in the air when it was right. She was part of it, and it was part of her."

~New York Times best-selling author Paul Kemprecos.

bare hooves and open hearts

FRAN MCNICOL

EQUESTRIAN BEST PRACTICE

Tade paperback ISBN: 978-1-7358140-2-5 $16.95

"Top surgeon and author, Fran McNicol's new book is educational, often funny and a thought-provoking insight into the world of horses.

Bare Hooves & Open Hearts is full of invaluable lessons and a fascinating Must Read. I thoroughly enjoyed the book and would recommend it to everyone. The information shines though from a sincere and authentic person who lives and breathes horses."
