

Sourced in the town of Lightning Ridge, New South Wales, Australia, the black opal remains the most desired stone of its kind, thanks to its enchanting multitude of hues and rare nature.

Faye Kim reimaged her signature daisy ring with mesmerizing Australian Lightning Ridge black opals. The timeless stones are set in a contemporary 18K gold for a look that is at once classic and modern.

A translucent chalcedony pendant pairs beautifully with gold multi-loop swirl earrings.

Celebrate the beauty of feminine style.

Platinum, rose cut diamonds and a pop of color.

Sleeping Beauty Turquoise got its name because the mountain where it is mined resembles a sleeping woman laying on her back with her arms crossed.

Revered and highly sought after for its pure sky blue color, Sleeping Beauty Turquoise briolette earrings and necklaces pair perfectly with coral and gold.

Turquoise, with its distinct blue color, is one of the oldest gemstones to be used in jewelry. Egyptian handmade turquoise and gold bracelets date back to 5500 B.C., over 7500 years ago, resulting in jewelry for the ages.

Natural pearls are rare — only one pearl in 500,000 will be a natural pearl.

Natural seed pearl necklace, hand-wrapped in 18K gold, pairs beautifully with pieces from Faye's signature collection.

Every jewelry collection needs a pair of classic hoops. Worn alone or adorned with drops, simple hoops lend understated glamour to every wardrobe and destination.

Removable diamond drops offer endless versatility.

Rose-cut sapphire and diamond drops can be changed with every mood, season and style.

Inject your day with bold color that makes an impact.

Peridot and tanzanite nugget bead necklaces and black opal and tanzanite cabochon rings are perfect for sunny days and warm weather ahead.

Spring and summer whimsy in lavender jade.

Like these vintage Pucci styles, Faye's timeless designs mix old with new for a fresh take on heirloom classics.
