Our Story Needs Your Story

Andrew McDonnell

A handbook that advocates for working-class writers.

If you have something to say, then this book will help you say it. It will help you find creative strategies to write about the working class lives you don't often read in literature. Using approaches including oppositional writing, second person narration, and storyworlds, this book will help you be the writer you want to be and shape the stories of the future.

Jaguarman

Raoul de Jong, translated by John Eyck

A mythic memoir of ancestry, transformation and the wild truths we inherit.

Born to a Dutch mother and a Surinamese father he knows very little about, Raoul is barely thirty years old when he receives the following email: I AM LOOKING FOR MY SON RAOUL DE JONG :) :) :). From this late meeting with his father, many hopes are born, sometimes disappointed, and as many questions, particularly about his Surinamese ancestry.

Landscape with Landscape

Gerald Murnane

First UK publication of Nobel Prize candidate Murnane's masterful first short story collection.

These loosely connected stories trace a journey through the suburbs of Melbourne in the 1960s, as the writer negotiates the conflicting demands of Catholicism and sex, self-consciousness and intimacy, alcohol and literature. It is now lauded as some of his best writing, offering a wide-ranging exploration of the landscapes which make up the imagination of this extraordinary Australian writer.

Feldman in Love

Stephen Chance

Morton Feldman; complex musical genius.

McCarthyite witchhunts, the Rosenberg trial, the Korean War. This is the backdrop to the combative friendship between two creatives; Morton Feldman and Philip Guston. Feldman, musical pioneer with a genius often derided in his lifetime, left a remarkable sonic legacy when he died in 1987. The Lower East Side of New York in the 1950s bristles with the electricity of music, poetry and art, and lives, where everything is risked to secure the next breakthrough.

Sánchez

Esther García Llovet, translated by Richard Village

A taut, cinematic novel of lost souls, nocturnal Madrid, and the thin line between beauty and danger.

A nocturnal drift through the margins of Madrid—where lost souls cross paths with the surreal, and the city itself becomes a character. In this stark, luminous novel, Esther García Llovet returns to the shadows of the Spanish capital to trace the uneasy reunion of Nikki and Sánchez, two former lovers bound by shared history and mutual failure.

Apparitions

Margo Glantz, translated by Ellen Jones

Two nuns, and one obsessed mother, doing everything thing in their power to achieve communion with the one they love.

Apparitions is a novel of ecstasy pursued, desire transmogrified into devotion, and obedience as a passionately pursued, not entirely free choice. Erotic, and suffused with painting, music, art, it's an incantatory exploration of what it means to abandon the world, and to use your body as a way of coming to know the divine.

100 Poems on the Underground

Edited by Judith Chernaik, Gerard Benson, Cicely Herbert
From Shakespeare to Angelou, verse that travels with us.

Travellers on the London Underground may recognise these poems as their fellow passengers: in the first five years of 'Poems on the Underground', they all appeared as posters on trains. This new Revised Edition of 100 Poems on the Underground, published on the project's 40th anniversary, once again allows these poems to be seen together, to be read again and remembered with affection.

The Roof Beneath Their Feet

Geetanjali Shree

¶ And was it not on this very roof-top where it all began? Where the children of the mohalla played, copycatting one another and bounding away from the reproofs of adults. Shouting 'times' for no reason, they would run to the skylight to peep, and start giggling nervously.
Translated by Rahul Soni

The Roof Beneath Their Feet

Geetanjali Shree, translated by Rahul Soni

A playful and moving masterpiece of psychological intrigue by the International Booker winner.

In this Indian modern classic by the International Booker Prize-winning author, roofs are meant for wild things, for romance and for play. They are realms of freedom – freedom from the male gaze, sexual freedom and freedom from society. Chachcho and Lalna use their roofs to build a friendship that transcends time and memory.

THE WORLD AFTER RAIN

CANISIA LUBRIN

The World After Rain

Canisia Lubrin

Canisia Lubrin's new poem is a luminous elegy.

In this stunning new poem, Canisia Lubrin's signature epic vision distills her elegy to her mother, along an interwoven and unresolvable axis of astonishment that belongs as much to history as to today. Her lucid attention to what might be the oldest metaphor for grief is drawn from the searing gravity and resonance of the modern poet's decisive, interior, and inexpressible meditation on love, time, and loss in the excesses of life's ambitions.

VENICE REQUIEM

KHALID
LYAMLAHY

translated by Ros Schwartz

Venice Requiem

Khalid Lyamlahey, translated by Ros Schwartz

From the publisher of Small Boat, based on a true story.

On 22 January 2017, Pateh Sabally, a 22-year-old Gambian refugee, jumps into Venice's Grand Canal and drowns as onlookers jeer. Outraged, a young Paris-based writer traces Pateh's story. Venice Requiem explores a city where literature confronts modern tragedy, weaving voices like Goldoni, Mann, and Proust into a powerful meditation on humanity and the redemptive power of words.

Unspeakable: Murder in Laugharne

Simon Tonkin

A powerful account of prejudice, vulnerability and a system that failed.

In 1953, Elizabeth Thomas was murdered in Laugharne. George "Booda" Roberts, a deaf-mute man, was arrested based on a dubious 'confession' but later acquitted. Booda: Murder in Laugharne by Simon Tonkin explores the crime, community response, and the role of ableism and police misconduct. It's a powerful account of injustice in a town famed for Dylan Thomas.

Happiness

Yuri Felsen, translated by Bryan Karetnyk

A haunting portrait of love, obsession and exile.

Happiness is the second part of Yuri Felsen's The Recurrence of Things Past trilogy, following the critically acclaimed Deceit, which Prototype published in 2022 to critical acclaim. Both subtle and profound in its exploration of love, art, literature, and human frailty, Felsen's trilogy traces the tormented romance of its protagonist alongside his artistic evolution, standing at the forefront of aesthetic and philosophical currents in European modernism.

Taiwan Travelogue

Yáng Shuāng-zǐ

¶ "Hold on. What's going on here?" ¶ I couldn't help but voice the thought out loud. ¶ For, in that moment, I seemed to have been transported back into the midst of Shōkyokusai Tenkatsu's Magic Troupe. ¶ I'd crossed paths with Tenkatsu's troupe long ago, before I'd started high school. They had been on tour, and on the day they arrived in Nagasaki, my aunt Kikuko and I happened upon the opening parade.

Taiwan Travelogue

Yáng Shuāng-zǐ, translated by Lin King

A bittersweet story of love nested in an artful exploration of language, history, and power.

Disguised as a translation of a rediscovered text by a Japanese writer, Taiwan Travelogue is a bittersweet story of love between two women. Set in May 1938, the young novelist Aoyama Chizuko sails from Japan to Taiwan where her interpreter helps her experience real island life and taste as much of its authentic cuisine as her famously monstrous appetite can bear.

Imperfect Bodies

Ali Isaac

A powerful memoir interrogating motherhood, identity, and the politics of the female body

Exploring social and political definitions of normality, Ali Isaac reflects on the able and dis-abled body. This memoir also delves into the experience of pregnancy, and the ways in which the female body becomes public. Central to the narrative are the following questions: is my body imperfect for conceiving a baby with a genetic disorder? Is my daughter's body imperfect?

Angst

Hélène Cixous, translated by Sophie Lewis, introduction by Jamieson Webster

A masterwork of love, loss, and memory.

A woman confronts abandonment by her mother, a male god figure, and her lover, both unreachable and idealised. Through lyrical, dream-like fragments, she explores memory, desire, and forgetting, haunted by mythical hybrids and emotional torment. In a bold, poetic rush, Cixous's singular voice delivers anguish and catharsis, echoing the intensity of Duras, Ernaux, and Carson.

The Villain's Dance

Fiston Mwanza Mujila

¶ The Madonna was not some little madam under the influence of alcohol and other beverages bereft of dosage instructions. She was no prophetess of misfortune and tall tales derived from some unknown gutter. Not even a vendor of dreams, questionable expectations, chimeras ... well, you're quite cognizant of where such trinkets lead as they stream into your ears without cease.

The Whispering Jacarandas

A nuanced exploration of family, identity, and the ways silence shapes our lives.

The Whispering Jacarandas is a haunting debut set in post-independence Zimbabwe. Sisters Zaynah and Amira grow up in a tight-knit Indian community until violence fractures their bond. As they navigate adolescence amid political unrest and racial tension, they confront trauma, identity, and sisterhood. Lyrical and poignant, the novel explores resilience, belonging, and the enduring power of love.

The Roof Beneath Their Feet
Geetanjali Shree

* And was it not on this very roof top where it all began? Where the children of the marriage parted, each yawning one another and bounding away from the reproach of adults.
Sneaking 'times' for no reason,
they would run to the skylight to
peek and wait giggling nervously.
Translated by Rahul Soni

THE ROOF BENEATH THEIR FEET
Geetanjali Shree, translated by Rahul Soni

Publisher: And Other Stories

Format: Paperback
Price: £14.99
Pub Date: 03/02/2026

First publication (outside of India) for this playful and moving masterpiece of psychological intrigue and feminist space-making by the International Booker winner. In this Indian modern classic by the International Booker Prize-winning author, roofs are meant for wild things, for romance and for play. They are realms of freedom – freedom from the male gaze, sexual freedom and freedom from society. Chachcho and Laina use their roofs to build a friendship that transcends time and memory. 'One of the finest Hindi writers, Geetanjali has created for herself a thoughtful, lyrical and contemporary fictional world, which is free from moral posturing and political hectoring. And Rahul Soni's English translation of The Roof Beneath Their Feet is attentive to its poetic nuances and intelligently responsive to its complexity.' Alok Bhalla 'In The Roof Beneath Their Feet, Geetanjali Shree has created a dazzling, multifaceted narrative that plays around with shifting time and perception, leading the reader on a wild journey as only she can. Rahul Soni's fleet-footed translation keeps up with Shree's pyrotechnics, nimbly evoking a world like no other.' Jeremy Tiang
