

Reviva[®]
LABS

Built by Passion, Backed by Science, Loved for Generations

It all started with a man, a mission – and a refrigerator full of skincare.

In 1973, Stephen Strassler wasn't following the market. He was following his instincts – and his passion for skin. As an esthetician, Stephen had already spent years studying the science of skincare when he and his wife Judith decided to turn their tiny home into something bigger: the birthplace of Reviva Labs.

Their kitchen became a lab. Their fridge? A makeshift storage unit for in-process skincare. More than once, Judith would open the door looking for dinner ingredients only to find rows of formulas chilling beside the milk. "Stephen!" she'd sigh. "I can't put anything in here!" He'd just smile. Because to him, this was serious work – and a labor of love.

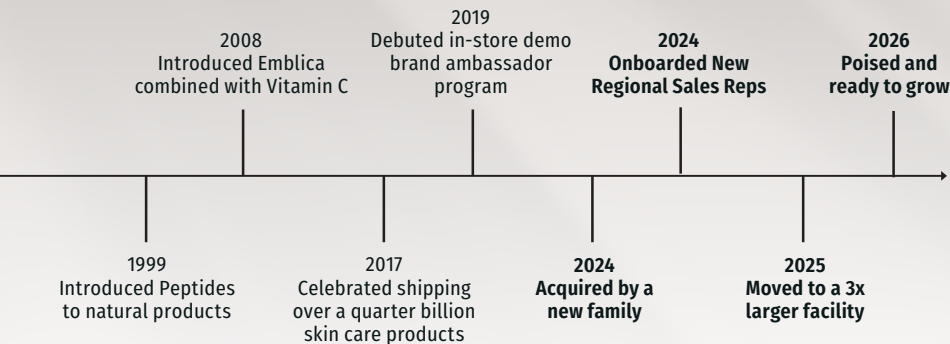

Stephen and Judith traveled – across Europe and beyond – chasing whispers of beauty traditions, folk remedies, and emerging ingredients, and studied skincare that had never touched American shores. They brought those ideas home and made them better.

Their goal was never flash. It was function. And every new discovery, every tweak, every formula answered one simple question: Does this really help people feel better in their skin?

For over 50 years, Reviva Labs has been shared between skincare fans. It started with estheticians who used our creams in facials and sent clients home with a jar. Then those clients shared it - and then others shared it. We've lost count of the stories from customers who say, "We always had Reviva in our bathroom growing up."

When Stephen passed in 2016, Judith held the reins with care. And even after her passing in 2020, Reviva remained under the stewardship of a family trust – still independent, still deeply rooted in its original values.

In 2024, Reviva Labs changed hands, but it didn't lose its heart. Sendayco, LLC, another family company, stepped in to protect what Stephen and Judith started, not replace it. We still build formulas the same way they would have, natural ingredients when they earn their keep, science when it proves itself, and nothing tossed in because it's trendy. No filler, no fluff, only performance you can feel on real skin in real life. And when you open a jar of Reviva, you're stepping into the same story that began with handwritten formulas and creams cooling in a crowded fridge, a legacy we're proud to carry forward.

Do you really need a toner?

Probably, yes. Toner helps skin reset after cleansing. It removes leftover residue, restores balance, and keeps skin from feeling tight or dry. By lightly hydrating and refining the skin's surface, toner helps serums and moisturizers absorb more evenly and work better. It's a simple step that prepares skin, improves results from the rest of your routine, and helps skin stay calm, comfortable, and consistent day after day.

Why lip care matters

Lips lose moisture faster than any other area of the face and have no oil glands to protect them. Daily exposure to sun, wind, and dry air leaves lips prone to flaking, cracking, and discomfort. Consistent lip care helps restore softness, support the natural barrier, and keep lips smooth and comfortable. Caring for lips daily also helps lipstick apply better and keeps lips looking healthy, not stressed.
