A new tech-centered golf league.
Launching in 2024

TMRW Sports, a new venture co-founded by Tiger Woods and Rory McIlroy, has announced the development of a new tech-centered golf league.

The league, which is tentatively named TGL, is scheduled to launch in early 2024.

Why was it created?

TMRW Sports was created with the goal of "accelerating the evolution of sports with several interesting projects in development."

The new golf league is part of this mission, as it aims to modernize the game of golf and make it more accessible to a wider audience.

How will it change golf?

The new golf league will be different from traditional golf tournaments in a number of ways. First, the league will be played indoors on a specially designed course. This will allow the league to be played all year round, regardless of weather conditions.

Second, the league will use a variety of technology to enhance the experience for both players and spectators.

For example, players will be equipped with sensors that will track their performance data. This data will be used to provide real-time feedback to players and spectators.

Third, the league will have a shorter format than traditional golf tournaments. This will make the league more appealing to younger viewers and to people who are short on time.

Tiger Woods, Rory McIlroy & Mike McCarley Form TMRW Sports

What else do we know about the league?

TMRW Sports has not released a lot of details about the new golf league yet. However, we do know that the league will feature teams of six players.

The teams will compete in a series of regular season matches, followed by playoffs.

We also know that the league will be televised. TMRW Sports has signed a multi-year television deal with ESPN.

What do experts think?

Experts are divided on how the new golf league will impact the game of golf. Some experts believe that the league will revolutionize the game and make it more popular than ever before. Others believe that the league will be a niche product that will not appeal to a wide audience.

Only time will tell how the new golf league will fare. However, it is clear that TMRW Sports is serious about making a big impact on the game of golf.

Conclusion

The new tech-centered golf league developed by TMRW Sports has the potential to change the game of golf in a number of ways.

The league is designed to be more accessible to a wider audience, and it will use technology to enhance the experience for both players and spectators.

It will be interesting to see how the league is received by fans and players alike.

Who's Winning, the EV War and Why?

The electric vehicle (EV) market is booming, and companies are racing to become the leader. But who is winning the EV war?

Tesla is the clear leader in the EV market, with a global market share of over 20%. Tesla is known for its innovative technology, long range, and performance.

The company also has a strong brand and a loyal customer base.

Volkswagen is Tesla's closest competitor, with a global market share of around 10%. Volkswagen is investing heavily in electrification, and it has a number of popular EV models on the market, including the ID.3 and ID.4.

Volkswagen also has a strong presence in Europe and China, which are two of the largest EV markets in the world.

BYD is a Chinese EV manufacturer that has been growing rapidly in recent years. BYD is the world's largest manufacturer of electric vehicles and batteries. The company has a number of popular EV models on the market, including the Han and the Qin Plus DM-i. BYD is also a major supplier of batteries to other EV manufacturers.

Other companies that are winning in the EV race include:

Stellantis is a global automaker that is formed by the merger of Fiat Chrysler Automobiles and Groupe PSA. Stellantis is investing heavily in electrification, and it has a number of popular EV models on the market, including the Jeep Wrangler 4xe and the Peugeot e-208.

General Motors is a US automaker that is committed to electrification. GM has a number of popular EV models on the market, including the Chevrolet Bolt EV and the GMC Hummer EV.

Ford is a US automaker that is also committed to electrification. Ford has a number of popular EV models on the market, including the Ford Mustang Mach-E and the Ford F-150 Lightning.

Why is Tesla winning the EV war?

There are a few reasons why Tesla is winning the EV war:

Tesla has a head start on its competitors. Tesla has been producing EVs for over a decade, and it has a lot of experience in this area.

Tesla has a strong brand and a loyal customer base. Tesla fans are passionate about the company's products and technology.

Tesla has a strong focus on innovation. Tesla is constantly developing new technologies and features for its EVs.

Tesla has a strong vertical integration strategy. Tesla designs, manufactures, and sells its own EVs and batteries. This gives Tesla a lot of control over its supply chain and costs.

What does the future hold for the EV war?

The EV war is still in its early stages, and there are a number of companies that are well-positioned to win. Tesla is the clear leader at the moment, but Volkswagen, BYD, and other companies are catching up.

The future of the EV war will depend on a number of factors, including:

The development of new technologies, such as solid-state batteries and faster charging networks.

The cost of EVs.

Government support for EVs.

Consumer demand for EVs.

It is too early to say who will ultimately win the EV war, but it is clear that Tesla is the company to beat.

THE LUCKY ONES

Fú Asian Kitchen sure to satisfy the whole bunch

Hard Rock Hotel
11:30 a.m.-10 p.m. Sun.-Thurs., 11:30 a.m.-11 p.m. Fri.-Sat.

WHEN OPPOSITES ATTRACT, IT'S OFTEN HARD TO KNOW WHAT TO FEED THEM.

Should you cater to the meat-eater or throw your support behind the vegetarian? If you're headed to Fū Asian Kitchen in the Hard Rock Hotel, your problem is solved and you'll satisfy everybody.

The vibrant space, with calm greens and greys, punctuated by deep pops of red (and one impressive archway leading in), promises a dinner to remember. The Asian fusion restaurant's menu comes stacked with dishes that channel Thai, Vietnamese, Korean and, of course, Chinese cuisines. There are many paths to wander during your meal, but Asian tapas and a cocktail or two make a great place to start. Be sure to let the chef or servers know who in your party needs vegetarian or vegan options; they'll be happy to help.

Cocktails named for the Chinese Zodiac take inspiration from a number of other drinks—the Rooster brings the flavors of a mai tai on board, while the Pig combines sake and soju infused with fruit for a smooth sip. You can go traditional here with pot stickers and edamame, but try Fū's roast duck quesadilla with hoisin and goat cheese for a deeply satisfying morsel, unctuous without going overboard. Getting it without the duck, surprisingly, gives you just as good a flavor—the hoisin sauce really complements the goat cheese—who knew it would be so good? Lettuce cups with Thai basil and minced chicken can be created with faux meat as readily as with the fowl, and both versions are equally enticing.

That versatility continues through the main courses, with grilled beef tenderloin presenting a striking picture—an island of tender pink meat surrounded by broccoli trees and a sea of buttery brown sauce. Peking duck matches that, with beautifully crispy brown skin covering the fatty breast. Scoop it up with steamed buns and hoisin sauce.

Kung pao chicken can be created in a vegetarian version, too, with peanuts and the same sauce as the original dish. Grooves in the faux meat (which is in itself quite tasty) add a welcome texture and help capture the sauce. Get one of each of these, close your eyes and see if you can distinguish the original.

What might be in store if you decide on dessert? Banana spring rolls are rolled up and fried, served with ice cream and caramel sauce, while chocolate beignets and mochi are hard to resist.

Although Fū may mean luck, it's skill in the kitchen that brings these fortuitous gatherings in the dining room.

Caused a stir in the medical community when he claimed, in an interview, that Scientology cured him of his dyslexia (1992).

While he was working with Paul Newman in the The Color of Money (1986), he engaged in much conversation with the politically active actor. The resulting conscious raising changed him from an actor who ignored the jingoistic tone of Top Gun (1986) to a performer who chose a film with a strong anti-war tone, Born on the Fourth of July (1989) to counter his contribution to the former film.

At age 14, he enrolled in a seminary to become a priest. He dropped out after one year. He took up acting after losing his place on a high school wrestling team due to a knee injury.

He has two adopted children with Nicole Kidman: Isabella Jane Cruise (born December 22, 1992) Connor Antony Cruise (Connor Cruise) (born January 17, 1995).

In the past twenty years since his first hundred million dollar grosser (Top Gun (1986)), only six of his films have failed to reach that status.

Why the Tesla Model 3

is the World's Most Popular Electric Vehicle.

The Tesla Model 3 is the world's most popular electric vehicle, and for good reason. It offers a combination of long range, performance, and advanced technology that is unmatched by any other EV on the market.

Pros of the Tesla Model 3

Long range: The Tesla Model 3 has a range of up to 358 miles on a single charge, which is more than any other mass-produced electric vehicle.

This means that drivers can easily take road trips without having to worry about running out of range.

Performance: The Tesla Model 3 is available in a variety of performance configurations, including a base model that can go from 0 to 60 mph in 5.3 seconds and a Performance model that can go from 0 to 60 mph in 3.1 seconds.

This makes the Model 3 one of the fastest cars on the market, regardless of powertrain.

Advanced technology: The Tesla Model 3 comes standard with a suite of advanced technology features, including a 15-inch touchscreen infotainment system, Autopilot driver assistance system, and over-the-air software updates. These features make the Model 3 one of the most technologically advanced cars on the market.

Cons of the Tesla Model 3

Price: The Tesla Model 3 starts at $46,990, which is more expensive than many other electric vehicles on the market. However, the Model 3's long range, performance, and advanced technology features make it worth the price for many buyers.

Build quality: Some Tesla Model 3 owners have reported build quality issues, such as misaligned panels and gaps between trim pieces. However, Tesla has been working to address these issues, and the Model 3's build quality has improved significantly in recent years.

Service center wait times: Tesla service centers can be very busy, and owners may have to wait several weeks or even months for their car to be serviced. This can be a major frustration for owners who need their car serviced quickly.

What's next after the Tesla Model 3?

Tesla is currently working on a number of new electric vehicles, including the Model Y SUV, the Cybertruck, and the Semi truck. These vehicles are expected to be released in the next few years, and they are expected to be even more popular than the Model 3.

The Model Y is a crossover SUV that is based on the Model 3. It is expected to have a similar range and performance as the Model 3, but it will offer more cargo space and seating capacity.

The Cybertruck is a futuristic electric pickup truck that is expected to have a range of over 500 miles. It is also expected to be one of the fastest pickup trucks on the market.

The Semi is an electric truck that is designed for long-haul trucking. It is expected to have a range of over 500 miles on a single charge.

These new electric vehicles are expected to be very popular, and they could help Tesla to further solidify its position as the leader in the EV market.

Conclusion

The Tesla Model 3 is the world's most popular electric vehicle because it offers a combination of long range, performance, and advanced technology that is unmatched by any other EV on the market. Tesla is also working on a number of new electric vehicles, which are expected to be even more popular than the Model 3.

Starting prices for the 2024

Tesla Model 3:

Model 3 – $46,990

Model 3 Long Range – $52,240

Model 3 Performance – $59,840

Note that these are only starting prices for each model; the ultimate cost will also depend on additional costs, like add-ons, taxes and the country you're in.

Drai's
NIGHTCLUB

LIFESTYLES MAGAZINE NIGHT CLUB PROFILE

Drai's Nightclub is a multilevel indoor/outdoor club that makes you feel like a VIP while providing stunning views of the stars and the Las Vegas Strip.

If you're not in the club scene, or your only interaction with the club scene is turning up for the music, you might not know the name Victor Drai. That's ok. He put his name all over something you're sure to remember -- Drai's Nightclub. It's the place in Vegas for club patrons who know the difference between upscale and just scaled up.

An elevator ride above the Cromwell, a sensual boutique hotels on the Las Vegas Strip, Drai's Nightclub continues the Cromwell's attitude of specifically-chic ambiance catering to a crowd of clever and well-off waifs. The clientele can tell that the Strip is changing and they know how small batches of craft work offer greater taste. So coming to Drai's means accepting that the club is as much a place for art as getting wasted.

They offer the usual decadence you'd expect like private jet charters and bottle service packages including ridiculously expensive champagne. But even for the average club goer the space is filled with the party favors, drinks and a giant disco ball you need to create a priceless night. And that's just inside.

When the night is warm, which is a lot of time in Vegas, the pool area is open with a view of the Strip, Caesar's Palace and Bellagio across the street, and the occasional burst of fireworks set off by someone who probably paid more for that honor than we make in a month of writing about it.

In many ways, Drai's Nightclub is like its competitors and it's cohorts -- Drai's Afterhours and Drai's Beach Club -- but thanks to the efforts of renowned creator Victor Drai and the smaller but special styling of the Cromwell, Drai's Nightclub has carved out a star-shaped space in a city almost bursting with supernovas. And with the mega performers who have hit the stage, like Iggy Azalea, the Weekend and more, Drai's Nightclub is a venue that brings the show to the party and thanks you for attendance.

If you want a true nightclub experience that still speaks to the boutique mentality of the too-cool-for-everything millennium, try Drai's Nightclub. Then go to Drai's Afterhours. The contrast makes them both cooler.

The Growth of the Wine Industry in Canada,

Especially in the Niagara Region

The wine industry in Canada has grown significantly in recent years, and the Niagara region is at the forefront of this growth. With its ideal climate and diverse soils, the Niagara region is home to over 120 wineries, producing a wide range of award-winning wines.

The growth of the wine industry in Canada can be attributed to a number of factors, including:

Increased awareness of Canadian wines: Canadian wines are becoming increasingly well-known and respected around the world. This is due in part to the success of Canadian wineries at international wine competitions, but also to the growing popularity of Canadian wine tourism.

Improved quality of Canadian wines: Canadian winemakers have made significant strides in improving the quality of their wines in recent years. This is due to a number of factors, including better grape varieties, improved viticultural practices, and more sophisticated winemaking techniques.

Increased demand for local and sustainable products: Consumers are increasingly looking for local and sustainable products, and this includes wine. Canadian wines are a good choice for consumers who are looking for wines that are produced close to home and with minimal environmental impact.

The Niagara region is particularly well-suited for growing wine grapes. The region's climate is similar to that of Burgundy, France, which is known for its world-class wines. The Niagara region also has a wide range of soils, which allows winemakers to grow a variety of grape varieties.

The Niagara wine industry has benefited from the growth of the overall Canadian wine industry. However, the region has also faced some challenges, such as the COVID-19 pandemic and climate change. Despite these challenges, the Niagara wine industry remains optimistic about the future.

Here are some of the ways that the wine industry in the Niagara region is growing:

New wineries are opening all the time. In recent years, there has been a surge in the number of new wineries opening in the Niagara region. This is a sign of the growing interest in the region's wines.

Existing wineries are expanding. Many of the existing wineries in the Niagara region are expanding their production and facilities. This is a sign of the growing demand for their wines.

The Niagara wine region is becoming a more popular tourist destination. More and more people are visiting the Niagara region to visit wineries and sample the local wines. This is helping to boost the region's economy and create jobs.

The growth of the wine industry in the Niagara region is having a positive impact on the local economy. The wine industry is a major employer in the region, and it also attracts tourists from all over the world. The wine industry also supports other local businesses, such as restaurants, hotels, and retail shops.

The future is bright for the wine industry in the Niagara region. With its ideal climate and diverse soils, the region is well-positioned to continue to produce high-quality wines. The region is also benefiting from the growing popularity of Canadian wines and the increasing demand for local and sustainable products.

Mercedes-Benz

To Now Sell Direct To Customers

Mercedes-Benz is one of the most prestigious and well-established car brands in the world. It has a long history of innovation and luxury, and its vehicles are known for their quality, performance, and style. In recent years, Mercedes-Benz has been experimenting with new ways to sell its cars, including a direct-to-consumer (DTC) model.

DTC car sales is a relatively new concept, but it is quickly gaining popularity. In a DTC model, the car manufacturer sells directly to the consumer, bypassing dealerships altogether. This can offer a number of benefits for both the manufacturer and the consumer.

For the manufacturer, DTC sales can help to reduce costs and improve profitability. It also gives the manufacturer more control over the sales process and the customer experience. For the consumer, DTC sales can offer a more transparent and streamlined shopping experience. It can also make it easier to compare prices and find the best deal on a new car.

Mercedes-Benz is still in the early stages of its DTC rollout, but it has already seen some success. In 2022, Mercedes-Benz sold over 10,000 cars through its DTC program in the United States. The company is now planning to expand its DTC program to other markets, including Europe and Asia.

How will Mercedes-Benz benefit from DTC car sales?

There are a number of ways that Mercedes-Benz can benefit from DTC car sales:

Reduced costs: DTC sales can help to reduce Mercedes-Benz's costs by eliminating the need to pay dealerships a commission on each car sold.

Improved profitability: By reducing costs and increasing control over the sales process, Mercedes-Benz can improve its profitability on DTC sales.

More control over the sales process: DTC sales give Mercedes-Benz more control over the sales process, from the way that cars are priced to the way that customers are treated. This can help to improve the customer experience and build brand loyalty.

Better customer data: DTC sales allow Mercedes-Benz to collect more data about its customers. This data can be used to improve the customer experience, develop new products and services, and target marketing campaigns more effectively.

How will DTC car sales change the car industry?

DTC car sales has the potential to change the car industry in a number of ways:

Reduced power of dealerships: DTC sales could reduce the power of dealerships in the car industry.

If more manufacturers adopt DTC sales, dealerships could become less important in the car buying process.

More transparent pricing: DTC sales could make car pricing more transparent. Without the need for dealerships to negotiate prices with customers, DTC sales could lead to more fixed prices for cars.

More focus on customer experience: DTC sales could force car manufacturers to focus more on the customer experience. In order to compete for customers, car manufacturers will need to offer a seamless and convenient DTC sales experience.

Will DTC car sales work?

It is too early to say definitively whether DTC car sales will work for Mercedes-Benz or other car manufacturers. However, there are a number of factors that suggest that DTC car sales has the potential to be a successful model:

The rise of online shopping: The rise of online shopping has shown that consumers are willing to buy big-ticket items online. This suggests that there is a market for DTC car sales.

The growing popularity of electric vehicles: Electric vehicles are simpler to build and maintain than traditional gas-powered cars. This makes them well-suited for a DTC sales model.

The increasing importance of customer experience: Consumers are increasingly demanding a good customer experience. DTC sales can give car manufacturers more control over the customer experience and make it easier to meet customer expectations.

Overall, DTC car sales has the potential to be a successful model for Mercedes-Benz and other car manufacturers. However, it is important to note that DTC sales is still in its early stages, and there are a number of challenges that need to be addressed before it can become mainstream.

Challenges:

Showroom experience: Car dealerships offer consumers the opportunity to see and test drive cars before they buy them. This is something that DTC sales models need to find a way to replicate.

Service and maintenance: Car dealerships also offer service and maintenance for cars that they sell. This is another important aspect of the car buying process that needs to be addressed by DTC sales models.

Consumer trust: Consumers need to trust that they are getting a good deal and that they will be able to get service, overall.

Apple Pay, the Future of Credit Card Payments

An easier way to pay in stores.

If you have not heard of Apple Pay by now, it is time to bring the latest mobile payment service introduced by IT firm Apple Inc. to your notice. The user-friendly payment facility allows owners of Apple iPhone 6 or 6Plus and Apple watches to make cashless payment to purchase products and services from merchants that accept this form of payment.

The Apple Pay technology was launched for the first time in United States during 2014. It allows customers of Natwest, Royal Bank of Scotland, Ulster Bank, MBNA, Nationwide, Santander and American Express to use its contact-less payment system for specific services.

iPhone

One touch to pay with Touch ID. Now paying in stores happens in one natural motion — there's no need to open an app or even wake your display thanks to the innovative Near Field Communication antenna in iPhone 6s, iPhone 6 and iPhone SE. To pay, just hold your iPhone near the contactless reader with your finger on Touch ID.

Or you can double-click the Home button when your iPhone is locked to access Wallet and quickly make your purchases. Your card number is never stored on your device, and when you pay your credit and debit card numbers are never sent to merchants. Apple Pay assigns a unique number for each purchase, so your payments stay private and secure.

Secure, simple and private.

Paying in stores or within apps has never been easier or safer. Gone are the days of searching for your wallet. The wasted moments finding the right card. Now you can use your credit and debit cards, with just a touch.

Apple Pay is simple to use and works with the cards you already have on the devices you use every day. And because your card details are never shared when you use Apple Pay — in fact, they aren't stored on your device at all — using Apple Pay on your iPhone, Apple Watch or iPad is the safer and more private way to pay.

THE GULFSTREAM G550 has earned many admirers, whether by winning the prestigious Robert J. Collier Trophy or by being named by owners as the best-in-value business aircraft. What's behind the success?

The G550 has the efficiency to fly 6,750 nautical miles/12,501 kilometers nonstop, but also is capable of operating out of short-field, high-altitude airports. Payload is a plus, too. The G550 can transport up to 18 passengers and still has the range to fly nonstop more than 12 hours.

Powered by two Rolls-Royce engines that provide the most thrust of any jet in its class, the Gulfstream G550 has a cruise range of 6,750 nautical miles /12,501 kilometers. The G550 flies from Shanghai to Los Angeles or New York to Dubai nonstop at Mach 0.80. London to Tokyo or to Los Angeles is nonstop at Mach 0.85. Fly all those miles without the delay of fueling stops or extra landing fees.

More than 450 Gulfstream G550 aircraft are in service, and collectively, have flown more than 1 million hours, a performance that gives the G550 a National Business Aviation Association (NBAA) dispatch reliability rating of 99.9 percent—the equivalent of missing only one trip in five years of service.
