GLOBAL IMPACT

14 INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTIONS AND COUNTING

no. 18 | Global Issue
WINTER 2024

From the Rector

Dear friends,

As we celebrate this Jubilee Year of St. Thomas Aquinas, I am proud to share with you the impact of the Pontifical University of St. Thomas Aquinas (Angelicum) throughout the world. Although we are a Dominican institution, our student body reflects the diversity of the universal Church. We educate Dominican friars and sisters along with diocesan seminarians and priests, members of other religious orders, religious sisters, and lay men and women from every continent. In this issue, we highlight some of our esteemed students and professors, our affiliated institutions across the globe, and the international character that marks our community.

While Dominicans make up just a tenth of our student population in Rome, the Angelicum has profoundly shaped Dominican life and mission. We showcase here Dominican friars and sisters who exemplify the scholarship, service and sanctity that has marked eight centuries of Dominican life.

While deeply rooted in Rome, the Angelicum also reaches out through our affiliated institutions across six continents. These educational institutions partner with us upon the approval of the Holy See to grant Angelicum pontifical degrees. In this issue, we spotlight our network of Dominican Centers of Study, Institutes, and Universities from Asia, Europe and the Americas. Together we are educating students, fostering research and serving local communities in the Thomistic systematic academic tradition.

As we embark on this Jubilee celebration, may the Angelicum continue to advance the mission of the Church for the next hundred years to come. Let us give thanks for the diversity of cultures and vocations that make the Angelicum a light to the world.

In Christ and St. Thomas Aquinas,
Fr. Thomas Joseph White, O.P.
Rector Magnificus

Degrees through International Institutions

The Angelicum is educating over 1,100 students this year. However, the academic footprint of the university reaches far beyond the walls of this former Dominican convent, or even the walls of the city of Rome. The university also has a direct impact on students around the world who are studying at one of the schools affiliated with the Angelicum. From the United States and Dominican Republic to Ireland and India, 14 schools have a connection with the Angelicum that gives them the ability to grant pontifical degrees in the name of the university. Last year, the Holy See elevated the Angelicum's former Affiliate - the Dominican Institute at the Dominican University in Ibadan, Nigeria - to a fully independent Faculty of Theology, marking a milestone in the development of theological education in Africa. These schools and their programs are evaluated by the faculty of the Angelicum, and 2 more schools are currently in the process of application. This enables students to easily pass from Bachelors studies at a school near them, to license and doctoral studies at the Angelicum in Rome or other Pontifical institutions. It also means that the Angelicum faculty is directly overseeing the courses which are accredited by the Angelicum, bringing the gift of the strong academic formation from the Dominican tradition to even more students and scholars.

Fr. Jesse Maingot, O.P., '24

Dominican Province of Ireland

I grew up in Trinidad and Tobago in a practicing Catholic family. However, I lapsed from the faith for about seven years. Not long after my graduation from York University with a degree in Global Economics and Organizational Analysis, I experienced a reversion to the faith. I thought to myself, 'If the Lord Jesus is real, then what else can I do but serve the Lord and preach His Gospel?' This led me to the Dominicans, where I saw a life that was conducive to intimacy with the Lord in study and prayer, a radical life that I could share with brothers, all in view of preaching for the salvation of souls. I entered the Irish Province of the Dominicans in 2012 and was ordained August 17, 2019. I studied at the Dominican Studium in Dublin, Ireland, an affiliate of the Angelicum. There was a sense of being connected to the Order's great intellectual tradition by having contact with the Angelicum. It was there that I received a solid foundation, being introduced to the great truths of our faith as understood by Aquinas.

This winter, I completed a license in Dogmatic and Fundamental Theology. My thesis focused on the way our Eucharistic Lord enlightens the mind and heart with his divine wisdom, which in turn perfects our love for him. For me, being at the Angelicum has been a 'feast of light'. I consider it one of the great graces of my life to have been led by theological masters in thinking out the Word of God in the great stream of the Church's tradition, with Aquinas as its bulwark. I am also greatly indebted to the extraordinary community of students who helped stimulate my own thoughts through numerous discussions and debates. Many have become dear friends. One of the many fruits of my studies at the Angelicum has been a greater desire to see God and preach the mystery of Christ. Theology ought to lead us to prayerful contact with the living God which in turn ought to drive us to bring others to this contact. I encountered professors at the Angelicum who did just this; they do theology on their knees.

Now I have returned to my country and will most likely begin a mission for the Archdiocese in promoting Eucharistic Adoration and prayer, and also faith formation. My Dominican formation in my province and at the Angelicum has helped me grasp the big picture of our faith - the great network of truths revealed by Christ. People need to be taught this coherence of faith because many live with a very atomised and fragmented understanding of the faith. The strength of the Angelicum is the sapiential approach to theology, which is the contemplation of the connection between all the truths of the faith and the way they mutually illuminate each other. In a nutshell, the Angelicum has trained me to bring divine wisdom to God's people, to preach and teach Jesus Christ.

- In January, Fr. Riccardo Lufrani, O.P., a Roman Province member and Angelicum professor, was appointed by the Italian Bishops' Conference (CEI) as the National Ecclesiastical Consultant for the Catholic Union of Italian Artists.

University Events:

- In January, the Angelicum's Institute for Ecumenical Studies commemorated the 20th anniversary of the Theological Dialogue between the Catholic Church and the Oriental Orthodox Churches through a "Public Academic Act," reflecting on progress made and envisioning continued ecumenical efforts.
- The Angelicum organized a 1/2 day retreat on February 24th, for all Dominican friars studying in Rome to gather, share experiences, and strengthen their vocations of study for the salvation of souls. About 65 friars, both priests and those in formation, participated, with a talk by Fr. Serge-Thomas Bonino, O.P. entitled, "Can you become a Saint by doing Theology?" The Master of the Order, his Socius, the Angelicum's Rector, Vice-Rector, and Dean of Theology were among the Order's leadership who attended.
- On March 7, the "St. Thomas Aquinas, 750 Years Later" conference, commemorating the "Dies Natalis" of St. Thomas Aquinas, also took place at the Library of the Italian Chamber of Deputies. Hosted and promoted by President Lorenzo Fontana and co-organized by the Angelicum, the event featured an introduction by President Fontana, remarks by Fr. Thomas Joseph White, talks by Prof. Pasquale Porro and Fr. Serge-Thomas Bonino, a discussion moderated by Prof. Giovanni Cogliandro, and concluding remarks by the Minister of Culture, Gennaro Sangiuliano. The conference was broadcast live on YouTube. - On March 19, the Musei di San Salvatore in Lauro in Rome unveiled 20 contemporary Annunciation paintings commissioned for the "Let's Paint Catholicism Again" project by the Angelicum's St. John Paul II Institute of Culture and the Saint Nicholas Foundation.

- Fr. Benedict Croell, O.P. recently led a joint preaching team comprising diocesan and Dominican alumni, professors, and students from various countries such as Italy, Ireland, France, Singapore, Spain, Poland, Canada, Scotland, England, and the USA. Together, they led "The Presence of God" parish missions across several US states including New York, Iowa, Texas, Colorado, Louisiana, Florida, New Jersey, and Georgia. The evangelization effort sought to present the fruits of a solid Angelicum education to the faithful, spreading the Gospel, strengthening the Church, and guiding families to encounter God deeply. Notable highlights included a closing night in the Atlanta Cathedral that drew over 900 people. The series of missions concludes with the same mission in our university church of Sts. Dominic & Sixtus from May 13-15 for local Romans in Italian.
- The annual Eucharistic procession, celebrating 23 years of student-led Adoration, will be held on May 9, with Bishop Daniele Salera, Auxiliary Bishop of Rome, presiding.

Planned Giving and Legacy Gifts

Donors can support the Angelicum in a number of ways, and receive valuable benefits in the process. The Angelicum is aware that many people generously wish to make their larger gifts in support of nonprofits and charities such as the Angelicum via the International Dominican Foundation. This allows a donor to provide for their charitable giving apart from their regular incomes. Some people use estate and tax planning techniques to provide for a charity and their heirs in ways that maximize the gift and/or minimizes its impact on the donor's estate.

For more information on Planned Giving, please contact Fr. Benedict Croell, O.P. directly: +1.202.642.3597 || development@pust.it

Charitable Funds

Some of our benefactors would like to establish a fund for the ongoing goals of their choice, such as an endowed fund for student scholarships, for scholarly research, or the ongoing practical support of our university. In partnership with the International Dominican Foundation, the Angelicum has several such funds and they have been our most consistent way of meeting our needs. If you would like more information please write us at:

THE HILLBILLY THOMISTS

ROMAN DEBUT

Over the past Thanksgiving weekend, the Angelicum celebrated by infusing a touch of American culture into the Eternal City. The Hillbilly Thomists, a bluegrass band comprising Dominican priests from the Province of St. Joseph, hosted a free concert in the university's Aula Magna. The event featured four members of the band, including the Angelicum's rector, Fr. Thomas Joseph White, and doctoral student Fr. Peter Gautsch. With over 350 attendees, this unique concert allowed the audience to enjoy the lively melodies of bluegrass while embracing the spirit of Thanksgiving in the heart of Rome.
