Hi Everyone,

April showers bring May flowers and man did that happen at Creative. My daughter-in-law, Annie, is now on staff and we couldn't be happier!!! Annie is my first daughter-in-law so I'm still a little "giddy" when I think about it. (I hope some of our Creative friends stop by some time to meet her.)

Thank you, thank you, thank you for your response to our Customer Appreciation Day and to those who made it out. It was incredible and it would not have been possible without you and the hard work of the entire Creative Carpet staff! I want to especially thank Pamela for her planning and expertise.

Also, many thanks to Janelle from Prestige Faux Design for helping assist our customers with their color and painting needs.

Happy Mother's Day...hug a mom, yours or someone else...just don't get arrested!

Your friend, Mark Sr.

Congratulations to our Customer Appreciation Day winners!

HAVE YOU HUGGED YOUR MOM TODAY?

RECIPE CORNER

Dad and company can make this creamy, foolproof confection on their own – no oven (and no Mom) required! That's because this cake "cooks" in the refrigerator. All you do is prepare a few ingredients.

Ingredients

- 1 (10 3/4-ounce) pound cake
- 1 (3 1/8-ounce) box of instant pudding
- 1 cup whipped topping
- Fruit (2 bananas and 4 large strawberries)
- Mint sprigs (optional)
- Chilled chocolate syrup

Instructions

Slice the pound cake into several horizontal slices about an inch thick.

Prepare the pudding according to package directions. Mix the pudding with the whipped topping.

Chop up the fresh fruit you've chosen. Layer the cake, fruit, and a little less than half of the pudding mixture in a loaf pan. Then top the cake with the remaining pudding.

Put the cake in the fridge for a couple of hours. When it's chilled, decorate it; we topped ours with trimmed strawberries and mint sprigs.

Squeeze on a greeting with chilled chocolate syrup. Then serve Mom a sweet treat on her special day.

Work Tips

Spending Time Wisely

What would you say if someone asked you to work for $2 an hour? (Other than volunteering for a worthwhile cause, that is, in which case you might cheerfully work for nothing?)

I doubt your response would be enthusiastic, and yet...you do this to yourself every day.

Einstein established the equivalence of matter and energy with his famous $E=mc^2$ equation, but there's another equivalence between time and money, which also involves matter and energy!

$$\text{Energy} + \text{Time} = \text{Money}$$

This equation holds true whether you work for yourself or for someone else. The hours of the day are precious in themselves, so spend them wisely.

What I'm getting at here is this: when you're working, work. Don't fool around looking at your social media accounts, or reading the sports headlines, or running to the coffee machine every two minutes (oops!). Multitasking isn't all that great an idea either.

I've found over the years that I'm most productive when I focus intently on one task at a time, preferably in chunks of time that are at least 20 minutes long. If you narrow in on one element of your work and keep at it intently without interruption, you will accomplish much more. You may find that 20 minutes stretching into 60!

Moisture Levels in the Home

There are many factors people consider in their environment, but one of the most omnipresent is literally invisible: the air you breathe. Even a simple factor like humidity can have profound effects on your health and on the health of your home.

Here are some of the main consequences of humidity extremes and a few suggested solutions:

Too much moisture:

- Condensation builds up on surfaces, in walls and attic
- In time condensation can rot out wood and furniture
- Excess moisture is the leading cause of mold growth
- Look for and repair sources of moisture, like leaks or faulty windows
- Use a dehumidifier – make sure to clean it frequently

Too little moisture:

- Indoor air humidity under 30% causes excess static electricity
- Dry air contributes to respiratory problems and dry skin
- Long-term, excess levels of dryness can harm the wood in your walls and furniture
- Use a humidifier – make sure to clean it frequently
- If you live in a dry climate, seal your windows and doors

About Staying Well
The Benefits of Bathing

No, I'm not suggesting you need to wash more often. What I am proposing is that you bathe more often!

There was a time when bathtubs ruled, but now it seems showers have conquered the world (or at least this part of the world). Usually people cite time as a reason for the switch, though some dislike "sitting in dirty water."

Yet sometimes in your busy life you deserve a bathtub break, and there is some evidence to suggest a health benefit as well. If you suffer from arthritis a bath of Epsom salts may relieve your discomfort. A good soak in the tub can relieve anxiety, stress or muscle strain. Bathing is beneficial for your skin too, since so much of that skin tissue is water.

I seriously doubt that anyone has done scholarly research in this area, but I'm hoping somewhere out there is a doctoral thesis with the title: "Bathtubs vs. Showers: A Paradigm Shift in Twentieth Century North American Culture."

Why Does Reality Matter?

Here's another recent cultural shift: the rise of "reality" programming in television.

The first BIG reality show, Survivor, hit North America in the year 2000. Now airwaves are full of toddlers, housewives, bachelors, arctic road truckers and so forth. But did you ever ask yourself why?

Top Reasons

- 1) More channels require TONS of additional programming
- 2) We love watching other people do strange things
- 3) WAAAY less expensive than hiring writers and actors
